

- Web or Net :- The world wide web (a server) consisting of a hypermedia system (linking sounds, text, pictures, video) that the computers (a client) can access.
- Web Page :- The basic unit of the world wide web. Information on a web page can include graphics, audio and video. A number of properly linked web pages make up an intranet or internet.
- Web server :- A host computer that stores web pages and responds to requests for viewing. Web servers communicate with web browsers (by HTTP)

- Network :- A number of computers connected together.
- Server :- A computer with the capacity to provide connectivity (sharing) to multiple personal computers or clients.
- TCP/IP :- It stands for Transmission Control Protocol / Internet Protocol. This is the group of protocols that define the internet and communication method used by it.
- Home Page :- The primary web page for an individual or organization. These pages link to other related pages.
- Hot Links :- A connection from one web page to another. Hot links are frequently indicated by colored, underlined text and / or an icon.
- HTTP :- It stands for Hypertext Transfer Protocol.
The way web pages are transferred over the internet or an intranet.
- Graphics Interchange Format (GIF) :- A type of graphics file found frequently on the net. A picture of a "Vice-President"

For example, may appear on the internet as a GIF.

→ Firewall :- A protection of the internal company network against unauthorized access via the internet.

→ C-counter :- A software code that indicates how many times a site has been visited.

→ Cyber space :- The conceptual or virtual area where pages, data, images, and all the rest are stored. It is the area from where requests are accepted and fulfilled from computers to computers, users to users.

→ Frame :- A presentation format, which enables web page designers and users to mark a part of the screen for links to other pages.

→ FAQs :- It stands for Frequently Asked Questions. Common questions and their answers that occur regularly within a user group. FAQs also appear as a hot link on many websites and sometimes acts as reservoir of knowledge about the company or its products.

→ FTP :- It stands File Transfer Protocol. A very common method of moving files between two internet sites.